Move to Back Cowen Against Garner For Sheriff Is Reported

Baker and Miles Strength in Primary Claimed by Backers to Offer Possibilities For Republican

More to elect a republican sheriff of Jefferson county appeared to be getting down to brass tacks today. According to several in the plan a concentrated effort is getting under way to back Ben Cowen, federal prohibition officer and former Port Arthur police officer, for sheriff at the fall election.

Cowen Saturday was nominated for sheriff on the republican ticket. Tom Garner, incumbent, was high man in the July 20 primaries and will not be opposed in the runoff August 23. Opponents in the election a week ago were J. F. Baker and A. R. Miles, Baker narrowly failing to win place in the runoff.

Class Strength for Cowen

According to plans now understood to be in the making Cowen would gain the support of Baker's adherents and much of Miles, and several of those claim that the disaffected vote claimed to be against Garner could be expected to make the election a snappy affair.

Usually the republican ticket fails to roll up a very large vote, but this time the strength back of Cowen and a considerable portion of the support given Baker and Miles and construed as being anti-Garner, supporters of Cowen declare the idea of backing the federal agent for sheriff is far from ridiculous.

On the other hand known Garner men, told of the plan to back Cowen, declare that is absolutely no danger of such a move hurting Garner, even though it cuts inroads on the vote. They claim Garner still will be secure and comfortably in the lead and in the end that there will be all there is to it.

Breaking Party Pledge

To elect Cowen it was admitted that democratic votes would be needed, and this would mean that those democrats who would vote for Cowen would have to break their party pledge.

"There'll be few democrats with so little regard for their party pledge that they will vote the ticket on a personal basis," one of the adherents of the plan said today.

While this may be so, there were others who were not disposed to discount the fact that a movement to back Cowen, even had possibilities that might, if it gained popularity, seriously affect Garner's chances.

Cowen himself has made no announcement yet in connection with the move for a "rebel" ticket.

MRS. FERGUSON HAS 5,237 LEAD

Total Vote Tabulated Accounts for 698,778

DALLAS, August 4.—Texas Election Bureau returns from 251 out of 252 counties of the state, 237 complete, at 11 o'clock today showed Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, Temple, leading Lynch Davidson, Houston, by 5,237 votes in the race to oppose Felix D. Robertson, Dallas, the gubernatorial nomination in the democratic runoff primary, August 23.

The vote accounted for from the democratic primary more than a week ago was 698,748 out of an estimated total of 700,000 ballots.

For governor: Barton 29,254; Collins 25,081; Lynch Davidson 124,050; Dixon 4,222; Ferguson 145,441; Pope 17,063; Robertson 131,520.

Returns upon the attorney general's and Lieutenant Governor's race were not listed.

R. S. Lapham's Lump Sum Bid Accepted

R. S. Lapham was awarded the bid for hauling shell and gravel for the Southern Pacific siding to the scene of city work on Orange and El Paso avenues and Thomas boulevard at 47 1/2 cents a cubic yard. Lapham made the option in his bid of a price of 47 1/2 cents a unit, or a lump sum of $1,075.

The unit price was accepted. Other bids were as follows: J. A. Lindstrom, 54 cents; T. E. Gardner, 62 cents for shell, 67 1/2 cents for gravel; G. A. Root, 64 cents.

The bids were solicited upon recommendation of City Engineer Herpin that the work could be done cheaper by contract than by the city itself.

LAFOLLETTE TO GET UNION VOTE

Port Arthur Labor to Support Third Party

CONVENTION POSSIBLE

County Forces to Decide on Conclave

Port Arthur and Jefferson county labor unions will support the LaFollette-Wheeler independent ticket for the presidency and vice presidency to a man.

This was the statement given out by Henry Maitre, labor leader here, upon learning today the American Federation of Labor had officially approved the insurgent ticket.

Predicts Success

"We not only will endorse Senators LaFollette and Wheeler but we will do all possible to get them elected and carry Port Arthur and Jefferson county in the independent column at the general election," Maitre said.

Failure of the democrats to endorse McAdoo made the placing of the stamp of approval yesterday by the leaders of union labor on the independent ticket nothing to be surprised at, Maitre said.

"People are voting for the man now and not allowing themselves to be bound down by party restrictions. That's why I predict the LaFollette-Wheeler combination will surprise the old parties when the votes are counted," the labor leader commented.

Delegate at Convention

A LaFollette-Wheeler club will probably be organized here this week, Maitre states. Whether a county convention will be held at Beaumont next Saturday is in the plan of R. E. Curtis, state chairman of the LaFollette campaign with headquarters at Fort Worth, has not yet been decided, Maitre said.

That the LaFollette supporters here will have at least one delegate at the independent convention to be held at Waco August 12 is highly probable, Maitre said. Plans for the state convention will be made as soon as the club is organized here, is the plan now.

Port Arthur Represented

There were a number of interested citizens in the commissioners' court this morning, including A. L. Burge, manager of the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce; Henry Lohmann of Port Arthur; C. C. Hawkins of Port Arthur; E. C. Bracken of the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce; Joe Beaumont and others.

Committee Judge R. E. Johnson and members of the commissioners' court have expressed themselves as being in favor of building a road to Ellis Island and another from West Port Arthur to LaBelle. Improvements on the McAdams beach road have also been suggested.

Commissioners at breakfast this morning expressed the hope that the entire citizenship of the county would interest itself in the new road so that when they took up the proposition, there would be no protest against the construction.

SANTONE BOND ISSUE HELD UP

Validity Contested, Injunction Being Sought

AUSTIN, Aug. 4.—An unexpected turn in the San Antonio $4,350,000 bond issue was taken when counsel for the persons who are contesting the validity of the bonds filed application with Judge George Calhoun, district court of Travis county, for an injunction to enjoin the attorney general approving the bonds on the grounds that litigation has not been fully disposed of. City Attorney Joe Ryan arrived from San Antonio today bringing the printed bonds which he expected would be promptly approved and signed by the attorney general.

"He was not aware of the injunction proceedings until he reached Austin. Hearing has been set for next Saturday."

Litigation contesting the validity of the bonds has been in progress since last December.

38 Dairies During Last Month Inspected

Fifty-eight dairies were inspected by Inspector O. I. Baker of the city health department during July, according to report filed with the city commission this morning. Twenty-eight milk samples were taken, but the products of all dairies were found to be standard.

Twenty inspections were made at the abattoir. Three bakeries, seven restaurants and 12 markets were inspected. Twenty-two mules were vaccinated at the city barn. Six mules were treated, according to report, and five cases of rabies in dogs were investigated.

Just Don't Serve 'Em That Way on Monday

A NEW article of diet was introduced to the negro trusty at the police station today noon when he was distributing the mid-day meal to the prisoners.

"Holler, holler, me some more beans with celery," yelled one of the white prisoners.

In about 15 minutes the trusty returned with the beans and said: "Holler, Mr. Williams the jailer, said we didn't serve no celery with the beans on Monday."

The other prisoner had to be satisfied.

BETTER ROADS MEET PLANNED

County Representatives to Confer With Commissioners

A committee of 24 men representing all parts of Jefferson county will be appointed within the next two weeks for the purpose of conferring with commissioners' court on the proposition of road improvements.

In order that representation from all communities might be arranged, E. C. Bracken of the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce has suggested that Judge R. E. Johnson appoint a resident of each of the eight justice precincts in the county to appoint a committee of three men to represent their communities and meet together on August 15.

The suggestion was first made that three men from each of the four chambers of commerce organizations in the county form the committee, but since there are no such organizations at Hempstead, Barnett, Nemo, Sabine Pass and other small communities, this proposition was passed over.

Port Arthur Represented

There were a number of interested citizens in the commissioners' court this morning, including A. L. Burge, manager of the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce; Henry Lohmann of Port Arthur; C. C. Hawkins of Port Arthur; E. C. Bracken of the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce; Joe Beaumont and others.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON NEW CITY-DEPOSITORY

The city commission today failed to take any action on the pending matter of naming the city depository for the coming year. Bids were opened a week ago.

When Judge said he did not know when the award would be made, agreeing to pay three per cent on the average of bids. The First National bank, which has been the city depository for years, bid two per cent.

Stock Raisers Worry As Drouth Continues, Pools, Wells Dry Up

Abandoned Pump Stations Being Operated for First Time in Years, With Little Standing Water Left

Livestock growers in the county will be forced to heroic measures to care for thousands of head of animals who are beginning to show the effects of the drouth, water supply they declare, is nearly dry.

That application soon to fill dry ditches and water holes may be considerable.

More than a month has elapsed without rain. During that time ditches all over the county except those full through rice irrigation have gradually dried out.

Stagnant Pools First Time in Years

Abandoned pumps have been pressed into action in some parts of the county for the first time in years as an emergency method to replenish depleted water supplies. In the rural districts, many farmers complain that their wells are going dry and large numbers are being forced to pump more than a few buckets at a time.

A peculiar phase of the situation is that drainage systems constructed through the north end of the county to care for heavy falls of rain are being blamed by many farmers for their present plight.

Blame Drainage System

They claim that the ditches have discharged huge areas of standing water which formerly held over during the dry midsummer season, and that with these reservoirs gone they are helpless in maintaining water supply for stock.

Rice shows no loss so far, rice men say, since there are ample pumping facilities to keep the irrigation ditches supplied.

According to reports from Beaumont, stockmen throughout the county soon will be forced to emergency methods to take care of the situation, at present said to present grave possibilities except in a few scattered localities where some holes and ditches still have small supplies.

Germans To Be Given Equal Rights at Meet

LONDON, August 4.—Great Britain believed a final settlement of the tangled reparations question which has kept all Europe in anxiety since the treaty of Versailles was signed, was near as the allied conference resumed its sessions today.

The "big seven" also discussed withdrawal of 7,000 Franco-Belgian railway men from the Ruhr. A complete floor in the Ritz Hotel has been reserved as headquarters for the German delegation.

GERMAN DELEGATION LEAVES FOR CONFERENCE

BERLIN, August 4.—Germany's delegation to the allied reparations conference in London, which has agreed on application of the Dawes plan for settlement of the reparations problem, left for the British capital at 11 a. m. today.

The delegation is headed by Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann who had a long talk with Chas. Evans Hughes, the American secretary of state here Sunday.

Hope that a settlement of the entire post-war situation may be near as high as officials bade the delegation good bye.

DETROIT, August 4.—Patrolman A. G. Ashworth was killed by four bank robbers who held up a branch of the Continental Bank at Gladwin Avenue and Charlevoix street at 11 o'clock today and escaped with $2,400. Patrolman Herbert Hale was slightly wounded.

The four men drove up in a touring car, one remained at the wheel while the other three entered the bank. Seeing the patrolman, bandits immediately opened fire. They then intimidated other persons in the building, scooped up all cash in sight and fled.

County Democrats Rule on Justice's Race

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 4.—R. A. McReynolds will take office as the new justice of precinct one in November by a ruling of the county democratic committee. Saturday, McReynolds had as his opponents for the office both Thomas Brown, now serving, and W. L. Gainer. When the votes were counted, it was found that McReynolds was in the lead. He would have to run again against Gainer and Brown on August 23. Gainer Saturday was declared to be living in precinct 6 instead of one and "since this eliminates him as a candidate, McReynolds will be given the office."

PLANES TO STIMULATE TRADE IN HAWAII

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A new trade era in the Hawaiian Islands is seen by army officers here as a result of plans being consummated by Brig. Gen. Mitchell, assistant chief of the air service.
Within a short time, Mitchell expects to have airmen established on all the islands of the group and definite airways laid out for regular "line" between them.
The small island of Lanai saw its first plane a few weeks ago, when the Fourth Observation Squadron, stationed at Wheeler Field, Hawaii, landed a ship there.
Work is now going forward rapidly, with the pilots from Wheeler Field acting as pioneers. When their routes have been plotted and fields completed, they anticipate a boom in commercial flying in the Hawaiian group.

tendency to join the leading flier and Smith made the island port after being buffeted by heavy storms. Wade was forced down by motor trouble and his plane so badly damaged he probably will not be able to continue his world flight.

The Richmond is towing his plane into the Faroe Islands this morning. The towline parted enroute and the plane was abandoned.

Clanking on the deck of the Richmond, as the crack cruiser proceeded cautiously through whistling seas northward to Iceland where Lieutenant Nelson and Lieutenant Smith were waiting, Lieutenant Wade suffered the supreme disappointment of the American sky expedition when the sharp snap of the tow rope signalled the end of his plane.

The Boston was left to its fate in the heavy seas and the Richmond picked up speed and made for Reykjavik, Iceland.

Lieutenant Wade was piloting plane number 3, the Boston, which was carrying the emergency stations for the world crew. His mechanic was Sergeant Ogden of New Orleans, youngest member of the flying squadron.

Kirkwall Followed
The Boston hopped off with the plane piloted by Lieutenant Smith from Kirkwall at 9:15 Sunday.

At 10:59 a. m. the U. S. S. Billingsley, patrolling the (Shet) route, received the following message dropped by Lieutenant Smith who passed over the ship:

"Wade forced to descend. Motor gone. Needs immediate help. 115 statute miles from Borough of Birney.

There was also a request that both the Billingsley and the Richmond rush to the aid of the disabled flier.

Danger Signal Sent
A few minutes later the radio room of the steamer Richmond was in a buzz of activity. There was flashed the report that one of America's airplanes was down and in danger. A heavy cold rain was beating on the outside. Captain Cotten took the bridge of the ship, clad in a slicker and members of the crew took posts on all sides of the deck watching for the stricken.

The Richmond was 95 miles from the spot where Lieutenant Wade was reported down. The captain ordered full speed ahead and the cruiser sped up to 25 knots an hour.

Arriving at the spot where the stranded plane was supposed to be, the Richmond was dropped and Lieutenant Commander Leighton set out to search for Wade. It was then learned the flier had been picked up and was aboard the Billingsley.

The Richmond joined that ship and Wade and his mechanic boarded the Richmond for the night. An attempt was made to right the stranded plane but this was found impossible. One of the propellers was broken, the left pontoon punctured and one of the wings cracked up. It is conceded the plane can be used no more.

Flying Ship Hooked On
The flying ship was hooked on behind the Richmond which set forth for the Faroe Islands.

After coming aboard the Richmond Wade said:

"After I descended Smith circled back but I motioned for him to go on."

Immediately upon arriving Wade and Ogden went to bed exhausted.

Lieutenant Smith and Nelson probably will not hop off from Hornsford until the Richmond arrives at Reykjavik, on the other side of Iceland and the next stop of the fliers.

WALL STREET JOURNAL FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—If anything were needed to increase the already cheerful sentiment in the street, the statement of Secretary Hughes in Berlin tilted the bill. Mr. Hughes predicted success of the Dawes plan, expressed the belief that the other side had been turned and that an era of hope and prosperity was at hand.

Trade reports were also generally encouraging and big iron sales in the local district last week showed a big increase.

Stocks responded readily. U. S. Steel actively leading the market and going into new high grounds for the year. Highs were also made by General Electric, American Can and other issues. Ammunition for the bull side was furnished further by the Harvard economic service which said business improvement appeared probable to reach higher levels before development of conditions which marked the culmination of the advance in March 1932.

The market continued active toward the close, the Dow Jones industrial followed the advance of Aling.

Steel receded fractionally from its high as did American Can but both sides were firm, selling well above Saturday's closing. The general list showed no important changes in prices.

DAVIS TALKS ON 'MOBILIZATION'

Is Made Text of Special Section

NEW YORK, August 4.—John W. Davis, probably will use "mobilization day" as the text of a special section of his acceptance address, devoted to the need of American leadership in maintaining international peace.

After concluding his speech and sending it to the printer, it was learned, Davis added another section of some 1,000 words when he returned to New York and found that "mobilization day" had been developed by his running mate, Chas. W. Bryan, into something of a political issue.

The democratic presidential nominee and Governor Alfred Smith were to confer today at Davis headquarters, according to John Spellacy, eastern campaign manager. Davis is expected to urge Smith to seek re-election for executive of the "empire state."

Country Children Handicapped, Says Nation's Educators

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The rural school is the chief defect in the educational system of this country, according to educators from many states who have been participating in a series of lectures and conferences at the summer session of Columbia university.

Lack of properly trained teachers, relatively large illiteracy in the population, child labor and limited high school opportunity were stressed as handicaps of country life.

Of the 300,000 rural and village teachers in the United States, only 100,000 have completed a high school course. It was brought out by Prof. Mabel Carney of Teachers' college, County superintendents, Prof. Carney pointed out, are still elected by popular vote in twenty-five states.

Prof. Carney, after an extensive study, concludes that rural school attendance is greatly influenced by child labor on the farms. The total number of child workers from ten to fifteen years of age in the United States is 1,000,000, of whom 742,000 or 74.2 per cent are engaged in agricultural pursuits.

The number of Americans living on farms is 31,000,000, or about one-third of our total population, constituted Prof. Carney. "The population living in villages of less than 2,500 is 2,000,000. Of a negro population of 11,000,000 more than 75 per cent live on the land."

The expenditure per capita for city school children is about $80. The expenditure per capita for rural school children is about $44.

"City children enjoy longer school terms. The average urban period is 134 days; the average rural school period is 107 days. Illiteracy is greater in rural territory than in urban centers. The rural percentage is 7.7 and the urban percentage is 4.4."

"The obvious handicaps, rural education, it was said, is making progress, particularly since the report of the country life commission appointed by President Roosevelt. The country or rural school superintendent was characterized as one of the most useful agencies of the American state."

Dr. Ernest Burnham of the Kalamazoo, Mich., normal school said that there was a lack of appreciation of teachers by farmers. The average annual salary of rural teachers, he said, was only $720.

WINTON FINDS WAR TERRORS

Death-Dealing Ray, Rocket New Invention

BY MILTON BRONNER

News Special Writer

SHEFFIELD, Eng., Aug. 4.—Grindell-Matthews may sell his so-called death ray secret to France, but England will be safe all the same. This is the opinion of T. F. Wall, scientific adviser to the British government, who said today that the death ray is a deadly invention of the far future, but anything a scientist can invent.

"I found Dr. Wall in the electrical research laboratory of Sheffield University. This laboratory is his own domain in the school."

Unlike many men who have been loudly proclaiming their discovery, Wall is painfully modest. My request to him to tell me all about it was met by this:

"I can only say I have discovered a means of transmitting electrical energy in any desired direction across space without the use of intermediate wires. I have patented it to protect myself and my country."

"I may go a step farther and say that I believe by this form of energy I have discovered a means to kill living things at great distances. I haven't tried this yet, but am confident it can be done."

"The third step—that of destroying or stopping machinery—is one which I am not prepared to discuss. Electrical energy conceivably might kill a living thing, but not seriously affect a piece of mechanism."

Over at the little village of Ferriby, near Hull, I found a different kind of scientist—Ernest P. Welsh, who came near being a Brooklynite. But his parents moved back to the old country and so Welsh is a Briton. During the war, he discovered the first Verity light, invented a method of hearing the approach of submarines and the antidote to German chlorine poison gas. His claims against the government for these inventions are pending. At Ferriby he is manufacturing a non-inflammable movie film and is just losing deal for the sale of American rights.

And now the P-12—Rocket. Said he: "I have invented a rocket which will put out of business any airplane or airship that an enemy power could send over. My rocket is a tailless one and shoots from a tube by a charge of explosive I have invented. I can regulate it so I can send the rocket up into the air anywhere from 1,000 to 22,500 feet."

"When this rocket is at the top of its carrying power—that is, when it reaches the zenith of its upward flight—there is an explosion in the rocket which means in every direction between 300 and 400 miles. Consequently, there is a rain of red-hot molten metal in every direction."

"This metallic substance is an alloy of aluminum and a few other things that I have invented. The heat of these metals melts in to a mass that it will cut right through steel."

"Now figure an enemy power sends a fleet of airplanes over London. So soon as the signal is given men stationed in various parts of the city shoot up my rockets. The air becomes untenable for the enemy. These blazing pellets destroy the wings of the airplanes, cut through the motor parts, set fire to airships and explode them, terribly burning and even killing the crews."

"No machine and no man can live in that fiery shower."

TOM WHARTON ESCAPES TRIAL

Dallas Boy Accused of Driving While Drunk

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 4.—Tommy Wharton, wealthy Dallas youth, will not face trial on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Justice Campbell Overstreet decided.

Wharton was indicted following a smash-up on the Dallas-Galveston road near Hot Wells, Tex., on May 17. Clifford Reinlander, son of a wealthy Dallas drugist, was seriously injured in the crash and laid in the hospital here for weeks with a rib punched through one lung.

Ethel Lake, former wife of Dr. Ogden, Dallas dentist, and Miss Annie Dee Mims, both entered for the bathing girls' revue at Galveston, were also badly hurt. Wharton escaped unscathed.

Lillian Mims of Houston, sister of Annie Dee, filed the charge against Wharton. Both girls later filed suit for $30,000 damages.

The damage suits have not been dismissed, but Justice Overstreet, advised by the Mims girls' attorneys that one of the girls is out of the state and the other unwilling to testify, dismissed the criminal charge. The case had previously been reset twice on account of illness of Wharton.

FIREMAN SLAIN IN TRUCK CRASH

Answers Run, But Killed in Waxahachie Wreck

WAXAHACHIE, Aug. 4.—Tom Hatfield, about 40 years old, former fireman, was fatally injured while on duty with the Waxahachie department on West Main street when his fire truck ran into another.

The department was called to West Main street to extinguish a fire in an automobile belonging to T. J. "Buster" Brown, it was stated.

A truck driven by Buck Brown went first. Mr. Hatfield was on the side of the second truck, driven by Joe Freeman. When the driver of the first truck failed to stop, a signal to slow down was given by firemen on this truck to the driver of the second.

The signal was not seen in time, however, for the driver to make the stop before driving into the other truck.

The rear truck was swung into the curb in an effort to avoid a collision, but the attempt was unsuccessful and the heavy conveyance crashed into the front truck.

The side of the truck on which Mr. Hatfield was riding was thrown against the first one.

He was taken to Waxahachie Sanitarium. The physician in attendance said Mr. Hatfield died about the time of arrival at the hospital. Neither truck was badly damaged.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Editorial Mind

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

The end seat hog.
The road hog.
Any kind of hog.
That is, live hog. I am quite fond of dead hogs.

Forward children.
Talkative old people.
Professionalism, by which I mean those people who allow their humanity to be swallowed up by their position.
People who shove me in a crowd.
People who turn their backs on me in a social gathering.

People who criticize me or correct me when I make mistakes. These may be necessary for my development, but I don't like them.

The professional patriot. The man who uses patriotism to advance his own aims.

The woman who tries to be serious. Who considers it an affront to be called a woman.

The inanimate man.

Peasants.

People who are always using the word "refined."

Those who try to show how democratic they are by being vulgar.

Those know it all.

The sophisticated. Those to whom there is nothing new or wonderful or beautiful in the world.

This is not an effect of age but of affection.

Hideous health.

Sickness. Those whose principal topic is their ailments.

Those who think it is their principal business in life to eat on me. Probably I need it, but I don't like it.

People who think that they can convince you by talking loudly. I am told, in general, that those who throw their arguments at you as though there was some virtue in noise and sheer force. They make up by their noise what they lack in reason.

U. S. CORN CROP POOREST IN YEARS SAYS WALLACE

According to the federal department of agriculture the corn crop is the poorest in several years and its condition on July 1st forecast a yield of five hundred million bushels less than last year. Secretary Wallace eagerly reminds the American people that those who have corn, consequently, will benefit and benefit largely but those whose crops failed will be about where they were last year.

He says the same is true of wheat and of hogs—prices of corn, wheat and hogs are sailing upward and the farmer who has them is getting the good prices. Secretary Wallace is one politician who does not make the claim that the republican administration is responsible for the recent advances in the price of hogs, wheat and corn. He says the rise in price is due largely to the unfavorable conditions of the crops.

Those who have good crops of wheat and corn will make good profits. Farmers who have corn can sell and get good prices. Many farmers in Kansas and Nebraska and Iowa put their corn to hogs and they are now profiting by the recent advances in the price of hogs.

A farmer without corn, without hogs, without wheat or oats has his nose to the grindstone and his ladder is bare. There will be no corn surplus this year. There will be no cotton surplus. There will be no wheat surplus unless the Canadas are peopled with liars.

All the wheat producing nations, thirty-seven in number, report a decrease in the yield of wheat. Cost of living has jumped. Cost of flour has jumped. Man may be a good guesser but he never knows just what the future will bring forth.

THE CAWS OF A CROW

You can't blame the crow for not being white under all the circumstances. He has been exploited as an unpalatable political dish so long that it is really no wonder he argues, since he is traditionally bad, he may well be so in fact.

Mrs. Kuni Schlott keeps a rooming house on New York's west side, and being up to date, she has installed a radio set for the edification of herself and guests.

Next door, Miss Virginia Pope maintains a bird hospital, one inmate of which is a brunette crow. Mrs. Schlott's radio worked assiduously during the democratic national convention. So did Miss Pope's crow.

Every time the radio raucously revealed, as a starter, that "Allah-ham-muh casts twenty-five votes for Undabwood"—some 5,000 times first and last, and extending over a period of weeks—the crow would stretch its somber neck and wreck the air with a "Haw-haw-haw! Caw-caw-caw!"

Mrs. Schlott's indignation progressed to snapped nerves, but the crow continued to revel in derision of his probable and prospective political traducers.

So he was summoned to court with Miss Pope. The court, however, at once recognized that exclamatory utterances are a crow's by divine right and no written statute may abridge them.

In addition, the matter of justification intruded itself forcefully in behalf of the accursed bird, and, at this point, Miss Pope believed she had Mrs. Schlott eating crow. But only for a moment.

The court added that it would be advisable to hold the case open and inquire further—harboring a crow in a city might be unhealthy, he opined. Then it was Mrs. Schlott's turn to crow, tentatively.

So the case pends. Meantime, black days for the crow, who must wait with little expectation of justice that always has been denied his kind. He may lose his happy home or he may die for his caws. His is not to reason why or which.

Only can he, living, find satisfaction in that he seized a fine opportunity to deride party politics, or, dying, go out with the hope that he will be as unsavory as politicians effect to believe. Even a soul forever enveloped in darkness may be thus appeased.

TAMING BROOKHART

Senator Smith William Brookhart of Iowa is going to be good. His heart is with LaFollette but he keeps an eye on the main chance. Republican leaders of Iowa threatened to put a candidate in the field against Brookhart if he showed signs of insurgency.

A hint is as good as a kick at times. Brookhart did not wait for the kick. He is going to hoe his own row and permit the presidential candidates to do the same.

Iowa is a republican Gibraltar. There are no surface signs that the state will break away from its republican moorings in November.

In New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Man never is satisfied with the things at his disposal.

Out in rum row, 12 miles off the coast where rum boats anchor and await the coming of small boats from the shore, the crew have champagne, other fancy wines and liquors to quench their thirst.

But they weren't satisfied as they waited the long days and longer nights. They wanted beer.

Thirty legs were captured enroute to the rum fleet from the mainland the other evening.

"Sore legs" is a term applied to urines who are skipping a day's work. It originated years ago, I am told, with a newspaper artist who, when for one reason or another he wanted to remain at home, would call his office and complain, "I can't come today, I got 'sore legs'."

In a little town near New York this letter has been posted on the bulletin board:

"Please find my husband. He is working in a factory in your town. Tell him that the chickens won't lay since he left. I've tried having nearly everybody in town feed them, but they won't eat. If he knew this he'd come home."

The letter, written by a woman in Norfolk, Va., was received by a postmaster, who is doing everything to find the husband.

"One-two-three-four" was the mysterious count that aroused Mrs. Maurice Dunne from her numbers as he heard it again.

Frankly she awakened her husband. They listened together.

Rurgers.

Caustically they advanced to the living room, where the sound came.

They expected to find a burglar at work.

Instead they found the radio had been in action all night and that a "dilly dilly" expert was broadcasting a lesson.

The only difference between Dunne and Manfred, motion picture editor, was the screen he was in, a few ways of black hair.

He lost his hair and the big chance to be a screen lover of the day.

At the age of 14 he was a boy star. Later he played juveniles and heroes.

Now, at 26, he has rapidly receding forehead.

His features are stronger and display more personality than male features of today's movies, but he photographs as the unsatisfied virgin of his kind. No mother of the screen would permit him to pay court to her celluloid daughter.

Youthful, with a hat or cap crowning his disapproving thatch, neither rich nor toupes could be successfully used to hide his scarcity of hair.

He took to editing photographs. He took hundreds of thousands of feet of film and cuts it, as a newspaper editor would a story, into a 12,000 foot production.

I watched him work in his studio the other evening. By merely flicking through the film, running it between his eyes and a light, he enjoys the movie as a fan would on the screen.

His technique and experience as an actor have proven invaluable to his editorial work.

LOVE TRIUMPHS OVER LAW IN THIS CASE

ARKANSAS CITY, Kans., Aug. 2.—Love triumphed over law in the case of Mrs. Laura Maddox and Dan Weddle, wealthy oil man of Neakirk, Okla.

A week ago Mrs. Maddox told Weddle for $50,000 cash to elope and elope he did. Today the couple was married and the case dropped.

MORNING SONG

By George S. Chapman
When I am asked at early dawn
By robins chirping on the lawn,
Old thoughts within my brain are born
Of Nature and her power;
Bird-songs are natural, no doubt,
But I can never figure out
Just what they find to sing about
At such a hideous hour.

I cannot be a worm that is killed
For when a beetle's back is filled
With worm, its body is killed;
No bird can warble through it.
But whether art or appetite
Inspires them thus to greet the light,
Of one thing I am certain, quite:
I wish they wouldn't do it.

"Quiet nothing!" snorted the tired business man. "Between the chirping of the crickets and the radio loud speaker of a party of college boys in the next camp, I never closed an eye."

The Professor in a Quandary

A certain professor, who would never have recognized Addison Sims of Seattle, once took a railroad journey. As is usually the case, he departed from his berth during the night, for the purpose of procuring a drink of water. True to the traditions of professors, he forgot the number and location of his berth and was lost in blank unconsciousness when the porter found him, underneath the baggage car.

"What's de matter, sub?" asked the porter, "kain't yo' all remember wha at yo' berth was?"

After several minutes of deep concentration, the professor spoke, seeming to have been suddenly fired with a great inspiration. "Ah, yes, yes," he cried, "how it all comes back to me. I was born in a little town in South Kansas—or was it Chicago."

Your Money AT WORK

What is a bucket shop?

Bucket shops are illegitimate brokerage houses which offer "inducement" to customers which legitimate brokers cannot offer such as lower commissions, reduced interest charges, and lower margins. This is possible because their transactions are not genuine. The bucket shops have no margin to maintain at the bank, no interest to pay on loans, and no commissions to other brokers or costs of handling securities—because they handle no securities.

Their business is to bet against the customer by book entries, instead of executing his orders as broker. Most inexperienced speculators are "bulls" so that in a long declining market the bucket shops win the bet, bogging up customers' money as profit. When the market turns the bucket shops lose the bet and they close by the dozen. Whatever happens, the customer loses. The bucket shops do not wish to exist on the commissions of a broker—they are after the cash capital of their customers.

Just what are "bucket shops?"

I know the competition is greater there than anywhere on earth; but nothing ventured, nothing gained.

THE EDITOR'S SANCTUM

We have particularly liked the spirit shown recently, by a number of readers.

Knowing that we wish only original and unpublished humor, there have been some contributors, who, when sending something NOT original, have been honest and frank enough to say that the material was not original with them. Many readers have preferred their other contributions, with the statement: "Absolutely Original."

By this system of fair play, the Editor is able to give the fullest consideration to contributions. Instead of sending out word that "This contributor sends in old stuff."

TRIBE DYING OUT

WINNIPEG, Can., Aug. 2.—A puzzling disease similar to leprosy is gradually rapidly exterminating the Kiowa Indians in the Florida river district in northwestern Canada. Less than 200 natives of the tribe are left out of the 1,000 lost here a few years ago. Medical authorities are unable to find a cure for the disease.

NO LOVE SCENES

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The plays which have opened the summer theatrical season in London are without love-making scenes of any description, critics have pointed out. Playbrokers say that modern dramatists fight shy of big love scenes because they feel that love is becoming "a more casual thing" in real life.

The LAND OF FORGOTTEN MEN by Edison Marshall

Released by NEA Service, Inc. Copyright, 1933 by Little, Brown & Co.

BEGIN HERE: TODAY

Peter Norvell, August 4, 1936, from Alaska, after being told by Mrs. Johnnie, Russian violinist, he had but he has gone now, and you must seek your happiness in me, your husband.

"My husband!" the girl echoed, as if the thought were incredible to her.

"Yes, you are my wife. You don't owe any more loyalty to Peter—only to me. When you married me you took me for better for worse—and that means you take my past crimes on your head. You share everything with me, and that means you share my past, too. It will go hard at first, and you will be bitter; but I want you to put it out of your mind. You've got to be my partner now, even in my evil deeds. Dorothy, I want you to respect, rather than scorn that quality of unapproachable purpose in me that won't let me forget the things that I want; and particularly I want you to remember that it was all for you. The thing is closed and done, part of the dead past; and I want you to put it out of your mind."

The girl straightened and sighed. "I wish you'd go away," she said dully. "I can't forget it, and never can, and I can't forgive it. Everything is over between us. Now let me go—I'm going into my room."

His hand pressed more lightly on her shoulder, and he looked intensely into her eyes. "Into our tent," he corrected easily.

The girl shook her head; but her expression did not change. "No, I remember our marriage. My door is closed to you forever." At this point her slim body straightened, and her voice—though it did not increase in volume—took on a husky, unshakable tone of emphasis. "Understand everything clearly, Ivan, now as well as later. I don't consider myself your wife from now on. I'm going to my tent—you must go to yours. Your hands have no longer any right to hold me. I am free to marry and I will go away in the door, in search for the settlements. If you want to come, you may, but it won't be as my husband, and you must never appear in the United States again. You've asked me to choose between my husband's honor and you, my husband's honor, I don't see how you can wonder at my answer. When I get home, I will tell the whole truth and try to clear Peter's name, and take the smirch off his memory."

At this point she paused, faltering; and for one brief instant she did not know the cause of the sudden wind of terror that blew through her being, closing her throat and choking back her brave words. In that instant Ivan's attitude had changed. Outwardly there was little sign of it, but certain lines deepened on his white face and his vivid eyes looked dull red, like glowing, dying coals, under his fine brows.

A wan smile, determined rather than cruel, curved at his lips.

It was not that he had misunderstood her words. He was not such a fool as to think that merely a burst of temporary indignation, soon to pass away, Dorothy had meant exactly what she said. Yet her opposition only made her more desirable to him, blighted the fire of his madness. His strong arms went about her, and he pressed his lips to hers.

"Patrol," who watched from the mouth of the dugout, grunted softly, as if in reflection of his master's passion. Pat, a small, dark, unsteady man in the shadows, but he was not yet sure of his course, and preparations were not yet complete, as he paused, waiting for what might befall. Dorothy struggled in a sudden frenzy of hate and scorn, as if the blue had ravished her integrity. For a single instant Ivan held her helpless—just long enough to show her he was her master—then he let her go.

"Oh," she breathed. "You wouldn't dare."

She halted because she was afraid to go on. Ivan was full weakened now. He was shaking off the vestiges of his conventionality as a dog shakes off water, and with it went the veneer that western civilization had bestowed upon him. This rock-ribbed, waste of hardness, beside the sea, had a power of a deep, stirring appeal for him; and tonight he yielded to it as never before. It called to his deeply hidden primitive side, and what was left him, there in the weird twilight, was altogether Asia.

The racial differences she had seen in him had been vague and of not great importance before; but now they were put before her and forced her to see them.

CHAPTER XIX

The "Dead" Idea

Ivan turned abruptly from Dorothy, and smiling faintly in appeal, stepped in front of Dorothy. Her wide-open eyes fixed on his thin, stark-white face; but her expression did not change. She was too baffled and too convinced by what had occurred that at first she seemed hardly aware of him. He reached for her hands, but she put them away from him.

"Don't draw away from me," he urged quickly. He spoke softly now, for her ears alone. "Dearest, you must forgive me."

"I can't forgive you," was her subdued answer. She spoke without inflection, almost in that mottled monotone which came from deep grief.

"You must. It's the only possible course. You must realize that, I don't expect you to forget right away—even to vindicate me until I've at least won you to my point of view—but you must forgive. Don't you see it was all for you?"

"I am aware that I charged Peter with a crime he didn't do—that I caused him to flee and that while he was gone he died. But Dorothy, this world is of the living. When people are dead they cease to be, so far as the living world is concerned. You have found happiness in me; don't lose it again for an evil done long ago. Don't let the dead past shadow the living present."

"Every man does wicked deeds, only most of them don't get caught. Many and many a man wants to do wicked deeds but he doesn't dare to do so—his end. Other men have loved you, and have shared desperately that Peter would die and leave you free—but they haven't loved you enough—they didn't have the courage to make their wish come true. You know your Christian teaching—that there is no distinction drawn between him who wants to do evil and him who really does it. The thing is, did many men would have been glad to do, if they had dared to take the risk."

He paused, and the girl started to turn away. Ivan held her gently, his hands at her arms just below her shoulders. "I don't want to talk about it," she told him.

"But you must hear me, Dorothy. I wanted you, and I had to have you. I loved you enough to risk my reputation, to do evil to a respected friend, in order to win you. Don't you realize that this showed a love of which your Anglo-Saxon man would be wholly incapable? Peter was the victim—but he has gone now, and you must seek your happiness in me, your husband."

"The girl straightened and sighed. "I wish you'd go away," she said dully. "I can't forget it, and never can, and I can't forgive it. Everything is over between us. Now let me go—I'm going into my room."

His hand pressed more lightly on her shoulder, and he looked intensely into her eyes. "Into our tent," he corrected easily.

I am free to marry and I will go away in the door, in search for the settlements. If you want to come, you may, but it won't be as my husband, and you must never appear in the United States again. You've asked me to choose between my husband's honor and you, my husband's honor, I don't see how you can wonder at my answer. When I get home, I will tell the whole truth and try to clear Peter's name

Sumptuous Colors Being Approved of By Milady Of Fashion for Fall Wear

VENETIAN FUCHSIA, shutter green and burnt russet are the three new fall colors, which, like the three famous Musketeers, have pledged their troth to Milady Fashion. Just launched at the fashion show of the National Garment Retailers Association in co-operation with the Textile Card Association, these colors are being enthusiastically sponsored for fall wear.

Venetian Fuchsia is a sumptuous violet-red simulating the beauty and spirit of art expression during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and made famous by the great masters of the Italian Renaissance. It is especially adapted to evening gowns and wraps in satin, chiffon, velvet and metallic weaves and will be used in large combinations with luxurious fur trimmings. A millinery shade it also promises to be in vogue, not only in soft tones but blended artfully with deeper shades of the same color and in so-called violin combinations leading into purple.

Burnt russet is the glistening brown of autumnal foliage—when rich with the golden luster of sun-dipped orange fused with burnt tawny tan. This is an especially smart afternoon color and will be employed not only in silken fabrics but in woollens. It will likewise be a leading millinery color.

Shutter green is a typical American colonial shade—a green with soft, grayed qualities resting and inviting. It is the smartest innovation for suits and coats, and will find unusual expression in the ensemble costume, which is the last word in fashion. It is a green that all women can wear, as it has none of the harsh tendencies which many members of the green family possess. It will be used in smart contrast with black and with the soft brown and gray furs which fashion will employ.

The Textile Color Card association has incorporated these three new shades in the 1934 fall season card of America.

Wiley's home, 2525 Tenth street. The old building is being torn down this week, necessitating holding services elsewhere. ## Olga Petrova Revives Style

BY MONTENSE SAUNDERS
News Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The decorative ruff, beloved by the old masters and ignored by the modern fashion designers, is being revived by Madame Olga Petrova.

She was wearing one the day she landed in New York after a vacation in Europe; and many fashionable society women are now following her lead.

"This is not of Parisian inspiration, however," she informed me. "I found the Spanish women wearing them, and you can always depend upon a Spanish woman to wear what is decorative and becoming in a superlatively feminine way."

"Perhaps it is because the Spanish women are tired of them, but I saw fewer Spanish shawls and mantillas in Madrid than I did in London and Paris."

"We are all anxious for something new, and it seems to me it is quite logical to revive the ruff. No woman is so beautiful that she cannot be improved by a beautiful frame about her face, which is exactly what the ruff is."

Madame Petrova admitted, however, that the round-faced woman would have to be much more discriminating in selecting her frame than the oval-faced model, and that if she were too heavy through the shoulders or had acquired more than one helping of chin, she might well dispense with it altogether.

Not all faces are so well suited to the style as her own is. But she finds the style equally effective, with a large or small hat and with a tailored suit or a lingerie frock.

Madame Petrova believes that a woman should be able to originate styles to enhance her own particular type of beauty as well as to follow those laid out by fashion authorities.

OLGA PETROVA WEARING A RUFF

She also believes that we create quite as good styles in America as the Parisiennes do. "I bought very little in Paris," she told me, "because I realized I could buy exactly as good things in America and that they would cost me no more. Ten years ago, I would not have thought of buying my stage costumes in America. You could tell the Parisian copies from the originals every time. Now there is practically no difference. And you can get a model over here before you can in Paris, since all their newest creations are sent here immediately."

"In fact, when I want something really new, I go to Spain, Russia, or Vienna, but not to Paris to get it," she concluded.

Ellis Island Red Tape Blocked Her

SOMEVILLE, Mass., July 28.—

Mrs. Paul Barbara, holds up her baby, Malio, as a horrible example of the red tape that makes Ellis Island and the operation of the immigration law a terrible experience for women and little children.

Malio probably will get well now, but for the three weeks he was held on Ellis Island with his mother his life was despaired of.

Immigration officials told the mother that she could come into the United States, but that her baby could not. All that time Olga and Donata, Mrs. Barbara's other two children, waited here. If their baby brother had died on Ellis Island, there would have been no question of their mother's return to them.

Mrs. Barbara was born in the United States. She went to Italy on a visit. Malio was born there. By the time she returned the Italian quota had been filled. And for that reason the wise old heads at Ellis Island said the mother could return, but that the baby was "excess quota."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO RUTH WASHINGTON. So you went to New York, dear Ruth, to meet Walter?

Of course, by this time you know I was called here by my father's serious illness. I've old dad! He has to have a surgical operation, and we are preparing him for it today. We will take him to the hospital tomorrow. The doctors, however, say they think he will get well and be quite healthy if the operation is successful. You see, dear, there is always an if.

Of course, I am exceedingly nervous and worried about him. It is unfortunate that coming just at this time should be this trouble I am having in my own family.

Before I begin to talk about myself, I want to wish you all joy possible with this sweetheart of yours, who has been faithful. I don't want to discourage you at all, but just at present I would not be a good person to consult if the counselor wants an affirmative opinion on marriage. I wouldn't marry any man on earth, even if I thought he was as splendid as I know you think Walter Burke is at the present moment.

Ruth, this terrible catastrophe that we were afraid was looming up has come, and my marriage has gone on the rocks. Only you have known, dear, just how I have nursed every joy and tried to prolong every happiness that has come to me in the last three years. Only you know how much I have forgotten and tried to forget. It has been of no avail. Jack will never forgive me.

Three years married—the fatal three years. You know that percolators say that if one gets through the first three years of married life, the chances of being able to bear the load are not so bad. I once heard Jane Addams talk about this. She said the first year of marriage, the husband was very proud of his wife, and the wife kept her house very splendidly and paid a great deal of attention to him. Even in the second year when the first baby came, the husband was willing to carry the baby and once in a while trundle the baby carriage. If there was one, he got rather tired, though, of teaching and coddling babies, and by the time the second baby came in the third year, unless he had a good deal of stamina, he simply deserted the poor little, hard-working woman with two children.

Well, my dear, I have found that human nature is alike in all classes of society, and even Jane Addams' generation, which, of course, is that before mine, shows the same proclivities in the male that we have now. (Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

K. K. SPLIT SEEN AS VOTE NEARS

Antis Claim Walton Has Chance for Election

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 4.—Efforts to align all Ku Klux Klan elements in Oklahoma behind E. B. Howard, Tulsa, former congressman, candidate against Jack Walton, impeached governor, for the democratic nomination for United States senator, have failed, was the opinion here today.

A decisive political victory over the Klan appeared imminent for Walton following reports that W. R. Sampson, Muskogee cyclops, refused to heed the request made by N. C. Jewett, grand dragon, that all Klan units in Oklahoma support Howard in tomorrow's state primary election. Jewett today admitted a break with the Muskogee cyclops.

Strong Political. It was admitted that Sampson wields strong political power in the eastern part of the state. Other Klan units in that section are expected to follow Sampson and lend their support to Charles J. Wrightman, Tulsa oil millionaire.

The Klan's nominating clavs have been clipped by the break. Political observers here said. Its deadly effort to defeat Walton, who bitterly fought the Klan during his short reign as governor and during his extensive senatorial campaign, will lack the final punch, needed, in tomorrow's election, it was said.

KLAN ISSUE IN KANSAS RACE

Candidates Wind Up Contest for Election

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 4.—Candidates for state and national offices in three states—Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma—were winding up their campaigns today, prepared for the primary elections tomorrow.

Interest in Missouri centered in the gubernatorial contest where leaders of both major parties agreed that Dr. A. W. Nelson, Cooper county farmer, appeared to have the edge in the democratic side while Sam A. Baker, former state superintendent of schools was the leading republican contender in Western Missouri, at least.

Griffith Is Opposed
In Kansas, the Klan issue was injected into the republican contest for attorney general, Charles R. Griffith, who is seeking renomination, being strongly opposed by the hooded order. Senator Arthur Capper, seeking the United States senatorial renomination, is opposed by Sheffield Ingalls on the republican ticket. Four candidates are in the democratic race for this office. Governor Jonathan Davis is expected to be renominated for governor by the democrats.

Former Governor Jack Walton is furnishing the excitement in the Oklahoma campaign in his race for the democratic nomination as United States senator. Walton, who is being bitterly opposed by the Ku Klux Klan, has made an active campaign against that organization. E. R. Howard, Tulsa, former congressman, was officially endorsed by the Klan last night as candidate for senator to oppose Walton.

WOMAN SLAIN MONEY STOLEN

Act Strains Anglo-Mexican Diplomatic Relations

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—The brutal assassination of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject, on a road near her ranch in the state of Puebla, has brought Anglo-Mexican relations to the most strained point in years, in the opinion of British residents here today.

A stiff note of protest is expected from the British government.

Since diplomatic relations between the two countries virtually were broken off several weeks ago by expulsion of British Diplomatic Agent Cummins, because of his activity in Mrs. Evans' behalf, inquiry into the murder has been placed in the hands of the American charge d'affaires.

Mrs. Evans was shot and killed Saturday while returning to her ranch with the payroll for her employees. Her manager, a German named John Strana, was dangerously wounded. The payroll, about two thousand pesos, was stolen. It is believed the assassins are members of the Agrarian party, who had been persecuting Mrs. Evans for months.

THE IDEAL CITY

A city sanitary, convenient, substantial;
Where the houses of the rich and the poor are alike—comfortable and beautiful;

Where the streets are clean and the sky line is clear as country air;
Where the architectural excellence of its buildings adds beauty and dignity to its streets;

Where parks and playgrounds are within reach of every child;
Where living is pleasant, toil honorable, and recreation plentiful;
Where capital is respected, but not worshipped;
Where commerce in goods is great, but no greater than the interchange of ideas;

Where industry thrives and brings prosperity alike to employer and employed;

Where education and art have a place in every home;
Where the power of character lifts men to leadership;
Where interest in public affairs is a test of citizenship and devotion to the public weal is a badge of honor;

Where government is always honest and efficient and the principles of democracy find their fullest and truest expression;

Where the people of all the earth can come and be blended into one community life, and where each generation will vie with the past to transmit to the next a city greater, better and more beautiful than the last.

Is this what Port Arthur wants to be?

If it is, let us begin right now to build that kind of a city.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"Hello!" said Nancy and Nick.

"Have you made your fortune yet, Mister Zip?" asked Nancy.

"Well, what has that got to do with the squirrel boys going to Happy Go Lucky Park?" asked Nick.

"Oh, lots," said Chippy. "All they have to do, to get into the park is to climb a tree outside of the park. Then they jump from the branches of that tree to the branches of another tree inside the park, and then they run down the trunk, and they have all the money their father gave them to spend on their vacation. Just for rides and things like that. There they go now. I wish I could go along. I've got 5 cents to spend, but that wouldn't even take me in."

Sure enough the two frisky squirrel boys were coming out of their uncle's front door in Maple Tree Flat at that very minute, and the Twins watched to see what they would do.

Instead of coming down to the ground, they ran nimbly out to the end of a branch where they touched the branch of a pine tree. Then they ran from branch to branch of the pine tree until they came to a place where the pine tree touched a maple tree. They did the same with the maple tree until they reached an elm tree. From that to a chestnut tree and so on until they came to the edge of the woods where Happy Go Lucky Park was.

A big symmetrical tree grew right in the park. When they reached it, they slid down and there they were! In the park as nice as pie, and all for nothing.

"No wonder Mister Zip isn't making his fortune," said Nick. "Come, Nancy, we'll have to tell him."

But I'm sure the squirrel boys didn't think they were doing anything dishonest.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

ROPE-WALKERS AND JUGGLERS

A hundred and fifty feet up in the air! A rope stretched over a palace. A man walking across it.

That was five and a half centuries ago. It happened in Milan, a city of northern Italy. The rope-walker was from Portugal. He even dared to dance, instead of walk. A crowd of death looked on, marveling. Some of the women hid their faces in handkerchiefs, for fear the man would fall from the dizzy heights. He did not fall—he crossed more than a hundred feet until he came to safety.

Some time later, there was another act of the same kind. It was performed in France, at the funeral of a duke. The rope was stretched from a church steeple to a castle tower. The distance was about 250 yards. A young German acrobat crossed the rope in safety.

The next night, the king of France and thirty thousand persons watched him. As he walked, music played and he danced fancy steps. Now and then, he would stop and hang from the rope by his feet or by his teeth.

The art of walking on tight-ropes seems to have come from the Orient. Trained men and women came from far-away India, and taught persons at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. While the Crusades were in and near Jerusalem, some of them doubtless taught the art of rope-walking tricks, then brought the stunt to Europe.

Besides rope-walkers, there were jugglers who amused the people of Europe during the Middle Ages. Our picture shows some of them at work.

Some jugglers were skilled in dancing. Others recited poetry, or played on the harp. Still others wrestled or boxed, or did tricks of all kinds.

When the lords and ladies were much pleased by the jugglers, they would give them money, jewels or even such presents as cloaks, fur robes or horses.

That was true in some cases. Other jugglers had a very cheerless life. They wandered from place to place, with little or no money in their pockets. Their clothing was ragged. Often they had no coats or shoes.

Color Cut-Outs

As Betty and Billy Cut-out were going down the winding road to the seashore from their summer home, they met a boy about Billy's age. He was hopping about on one foot in a very strange manner. He was wearing a swimming suit.

"Ouch!" he shouted, seeing Betty and Betty, "Splinter!"

"Sit down," suggested Betty, "and maybe Billy can get hold of the end of it and pull it out." And that's just what Billy did.

"My name's Roger Ferrie," said the boy, as he thanked them. "My dog is Bendorfer but that big place back there. The people that own it aren't here this summer."

"Oh, it's the big estate right next to the cottage where that nice little girl lives with the cruel old aunt!" exclaimed Billy. "Come along and we'll tell you about her on the way to the water. Maybe you can think up a scheme to help her."

Color the boy's hair red and his bathing suit bright blue.

Things God Won't Do Recounted in Sermon

Enumerating seven things which God can do but which He will not do, Rev. R. R. Yelderman preached to a large audience at the First Christian church Sunday evening.

"God will not forgive the man that swears and sweats and keeps on swearing and does not repent of his swearing," Rev. Yelderman declared. "God will not hold that person guiltless who uses God's name in vain. God forgives a great many things but He does not forgive that man who persistently and continuously uses His name in vain."

"God will not accept bribes either. Some men have accepted bribes in all generations, but always remember this: Your God and mine will not accept a bribe, but God does receive the prayer and love of a righteous man. When we sin God does not want our money or our bribe. He wants our prayers and repentance."

"God will not let a good man or a good woman go down in utter defeat. No matter how many trials and misfortunes you have, if you still trust and love God, He will not let you go down."

"God will not let the wicked go unpunished forever. Those who have robbed, pillaged and sinned will not go unpunished for they will surely be called to account on that great last day."

"God will not forgive a man who persists in his sin. God will forgive any man anything, but He will not forgive that man who does the same sin again and again."

"God will not allow a sinner to enter heaven. Some people believe a person can sin all he wants to and because God is a God of love He will give him a second chance. But study the scriptures and nowhere in them will you find such a statement. God says in His Book that no evil thing and no sinful thing shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. God will not let sin remain in heaven when he cast out sin and surely He will not let sin come back into heaven."

The Unpardonable Sin

"And finally God will not give everlasting life to one who rejects Jesus Christ. Those who will not obey the plan of salvation as found in the scriptures they will not be given the gift of eternal life."

Two delightful musical selections
